

July 9th to 12th 2012 * Toronto ON

9am to 4pm daily

with Angel Yuen

...and special half-day segment

with William Cooke and Margotte Kaczanowska

4-Day Summer 2012 Narrative Therapy Intensive: Taking Narrative Ideas into Your Everyday Practice

Limited seating for this intensive

This practice-based intensive will offer participants the opportunity to delve into the many ideas and practices that inform both narrative therapy and narrative collective practice.

The emphasis will include:

- Learning about the maps of narrative practice
- Engaging in conversations that externalize problems, re-member significant figures in people's lives, explore what is absent but implicit
- How to move towards preferred identity stories
- Situating problems in the broader contexts of various power relations
- Considerations of gender and culture and narrative practice
- Developing practices that support rich subordinate story development

Throughout this 4-day training program Angel will share stories of her work to illustrate narrative ideas-in-action. Experiential exercises, didactic, role-play and video clips will also guide the learning together. A half-day will include a live interview and opportunity for participants to be part of an outsider witness team.

On Day 3 of this intensive William Cooke and Margotte Kaczanowska will present a special half-day workshop titled Goodbye and Hello: Narrative Therapy and Loss. This half-day workshop will help participants to apply the Narrative maps and practices introduced in the first two days of the summer school to the particular life situation of grief, loss and bereavement. Together, participants will become familiar with the transforming questions that Michael White described in his paper Saying Hullo Again as well as the important contributions to Re-membering practices of Lorraine Hedtke and John Winslade. The presenters will demonstrate ways to include the one who has died right in the consulting room

This intensive training program will benefit keen narrative beginners* and practitioners who are wishing to extend and stretch their current narrative practice. Most of all it will be relevant to anyone hoping to take narrative ideas back into their everyday practice.

*If you are a newcomer to narrative ideas, we suggest first reading the introductory chapters available online from the Dulwich Centre website titled What is Narrative Therapy? by Alice Morgan

Location:

Central YMCA
20 Grosvenor Street
Toronto, Ontario

Hotel and accommodation info is available at www.narrativetherapycentre.com

Certificates of Participation will be available upon completion of the intensive and will state 24 hours of narrative therapy training. Certificates may be used to qualify for eligibility for continuing education credits from professional colleges and licensing boards. Please contact your own college or association to confirm its requirements.

Social Event with a visit to Toronto Island. One can walk or bike-ride on the island with picturesque lake view and city landscape, and dinner on a nice summer evening.
